

Hora del Cuento · Story Time

Benny's Fruit Garden

A bunny plants a fruit garden and learns that good things take time and are better shared.

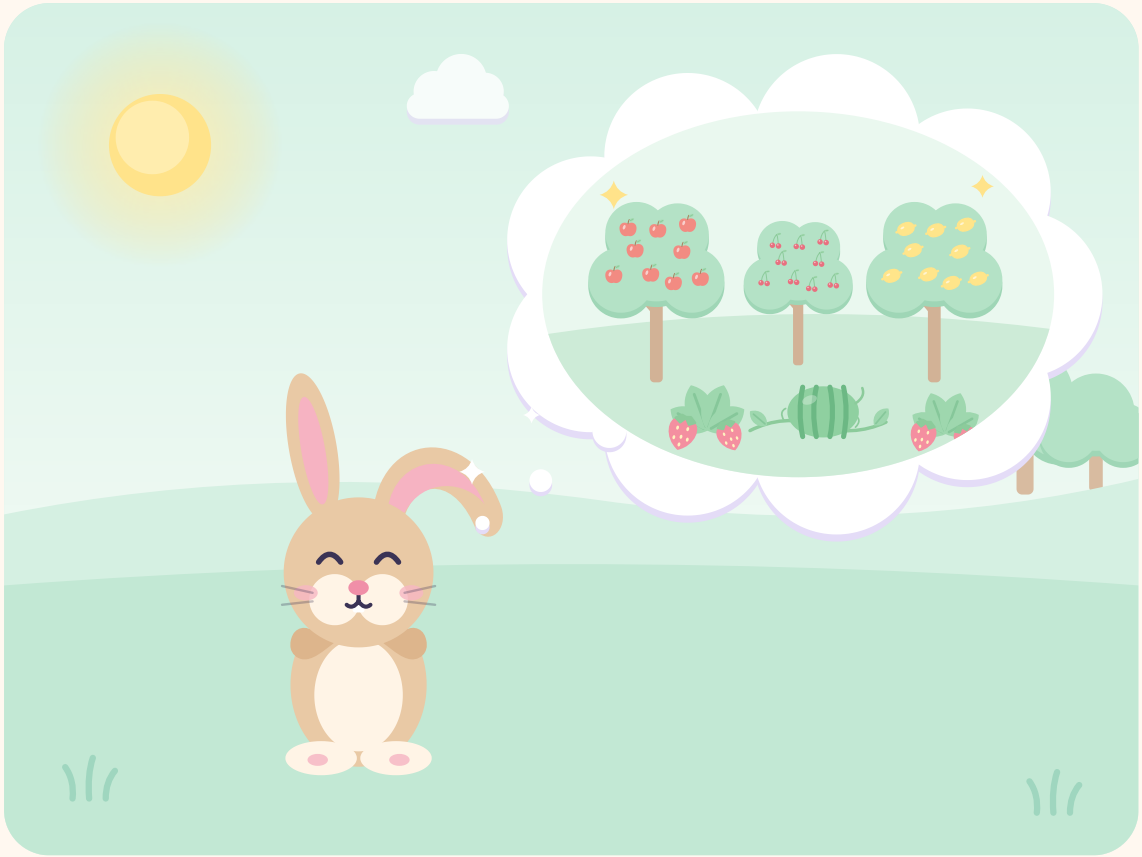

Un conejito siembra un jardín de frutas y aprende que lo bueno toma tiempo y es mejor compartido.

Vocabulary: Fruits · Vocabulario: Frutas

Chapter 1 The Tiny Seeds

Chapter 2 Waiting Is Hard

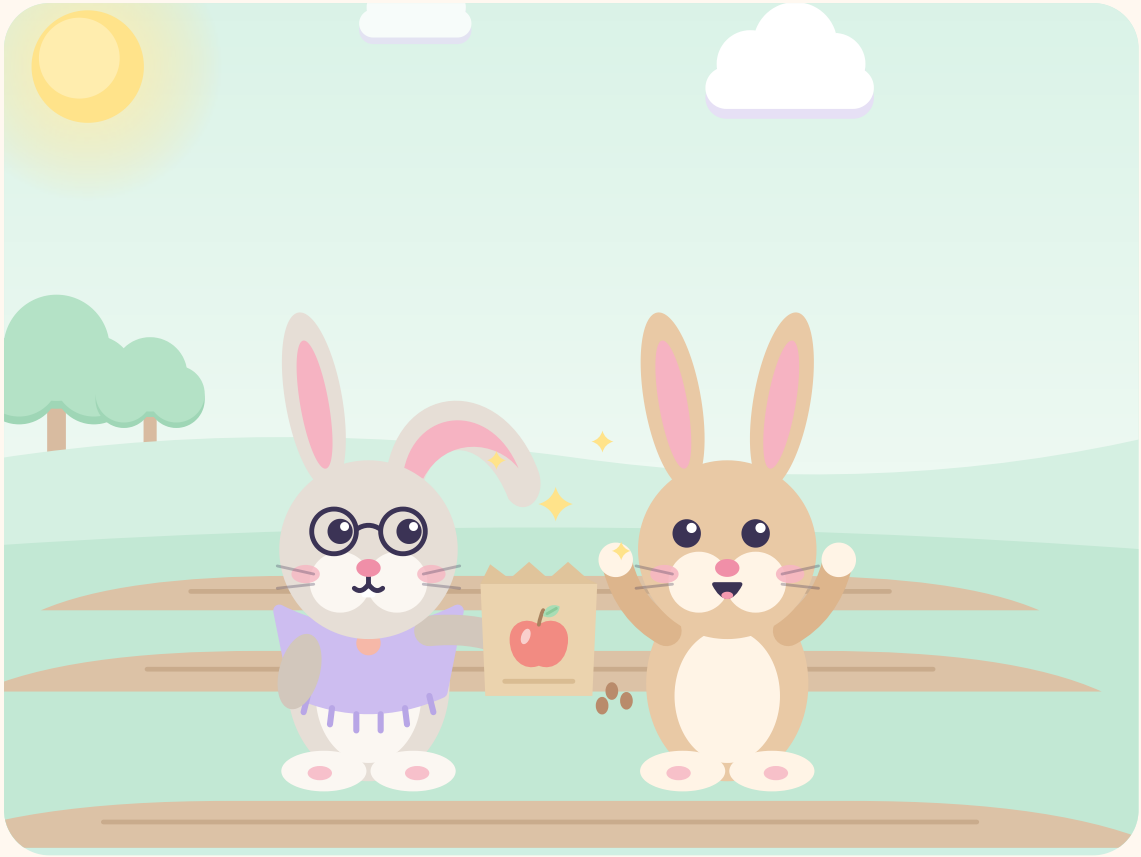

Chapter 3 A Fruit Picnic

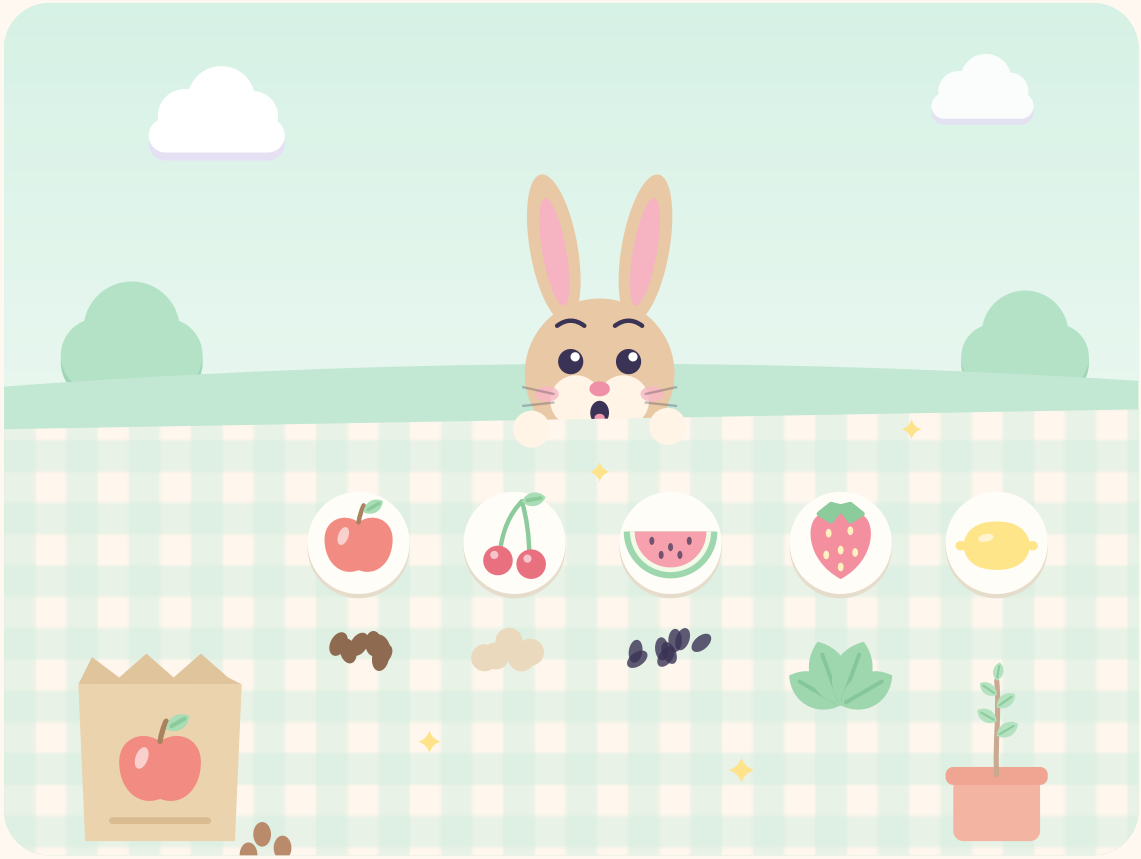

Chapter 1

The Tiny Seeds

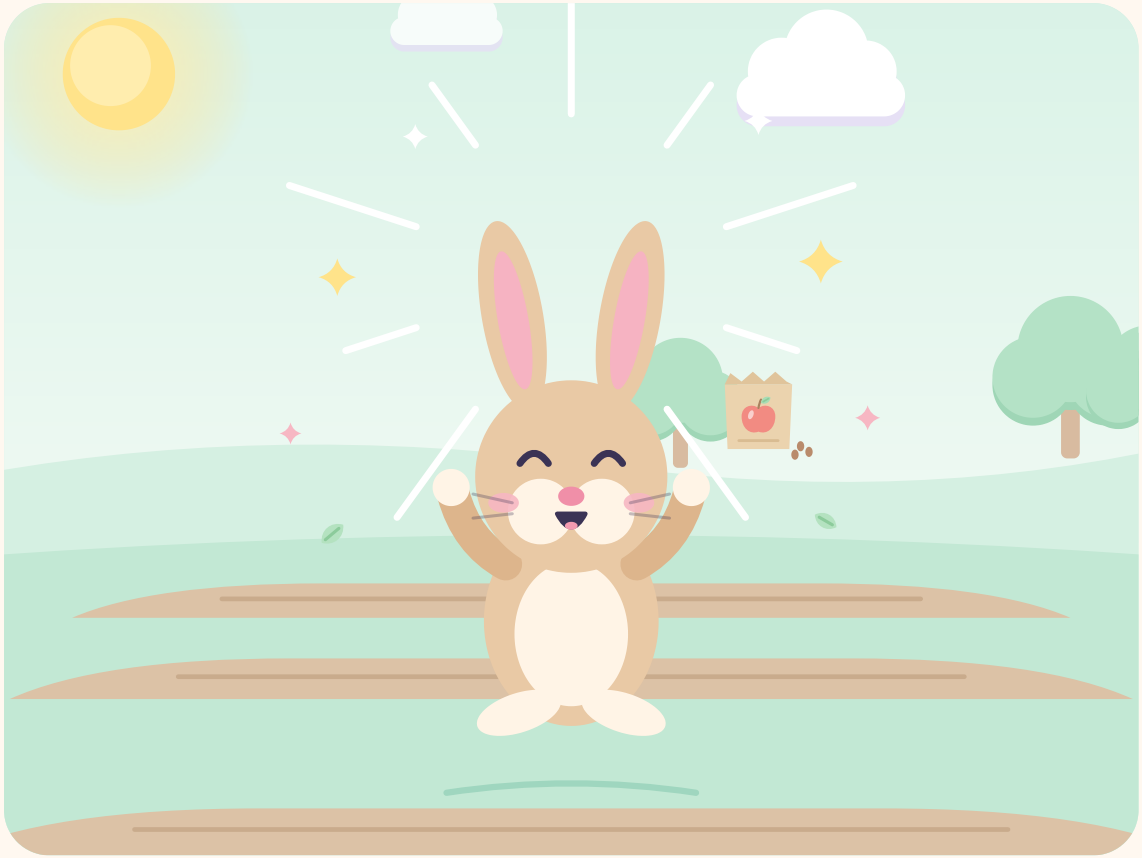

Benny was a bunny with long floppy ears and a very big dream. He wanted to grow a garden full of fruit.

One sunny morning, Grandma Bunny gave him a little paper bag. “These are fruit seeds, Benny. Take good care of them.”

Benny looked inside. There were tiny apple seeds and round cherry pits. There were flat watermelon seeds and little strawberry plants. There was even a baby lemon tree!

“Hooray!” shouted Benny.
“Today I will plant my fruit garden!”

He dug little holes with his paws. He planted the seeds one by one. He watered them with his tiny blue watering can.

Then Benny sat down and waited. And waited. And waited.

His friend Tilly the turtle came walking by, very slowly. “What are you doing, Benny?”

“I'm waiting for my apples and strawberries,” said Benny. “They should be ready any minute now.”

Tilly smiled a slow, wise smile. “Fruit doesn't grow in minutes, Benny. It grows in weeks and months. Good things take time.”

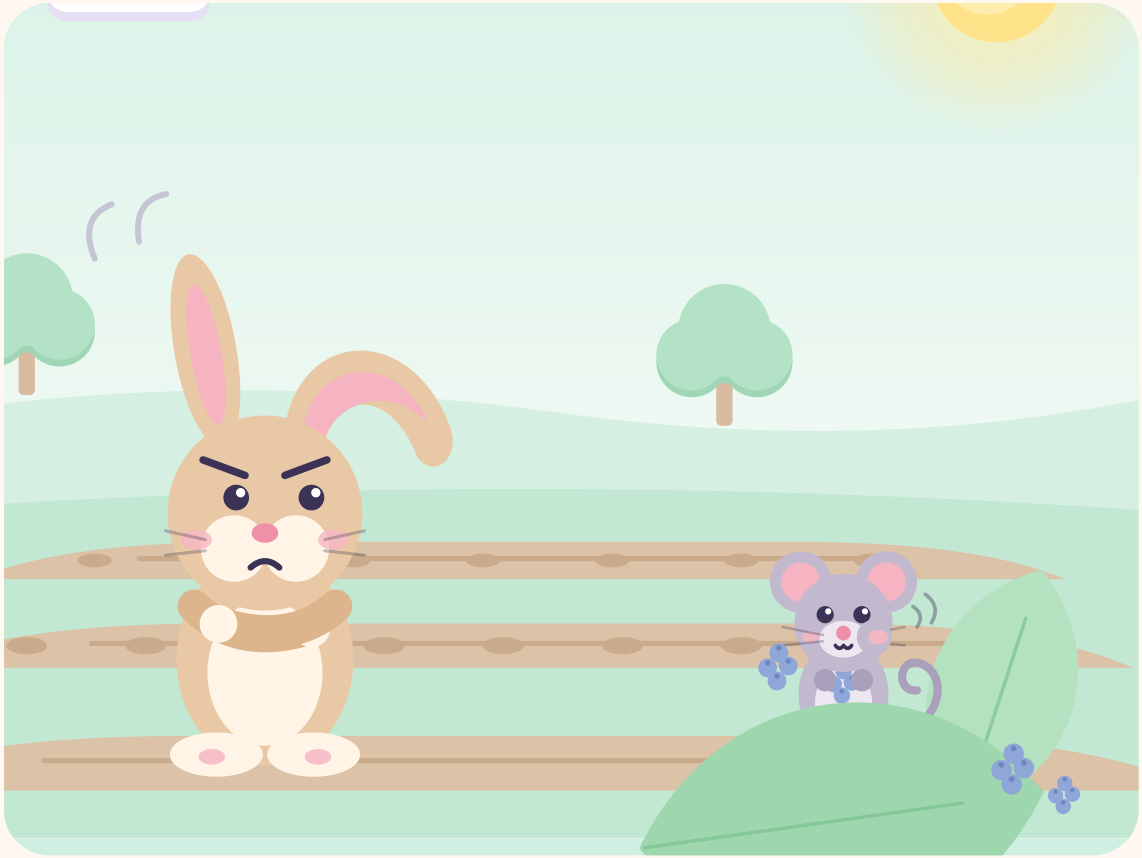

Benny's ears drooped. Weeks? Months? That sounded like forever.

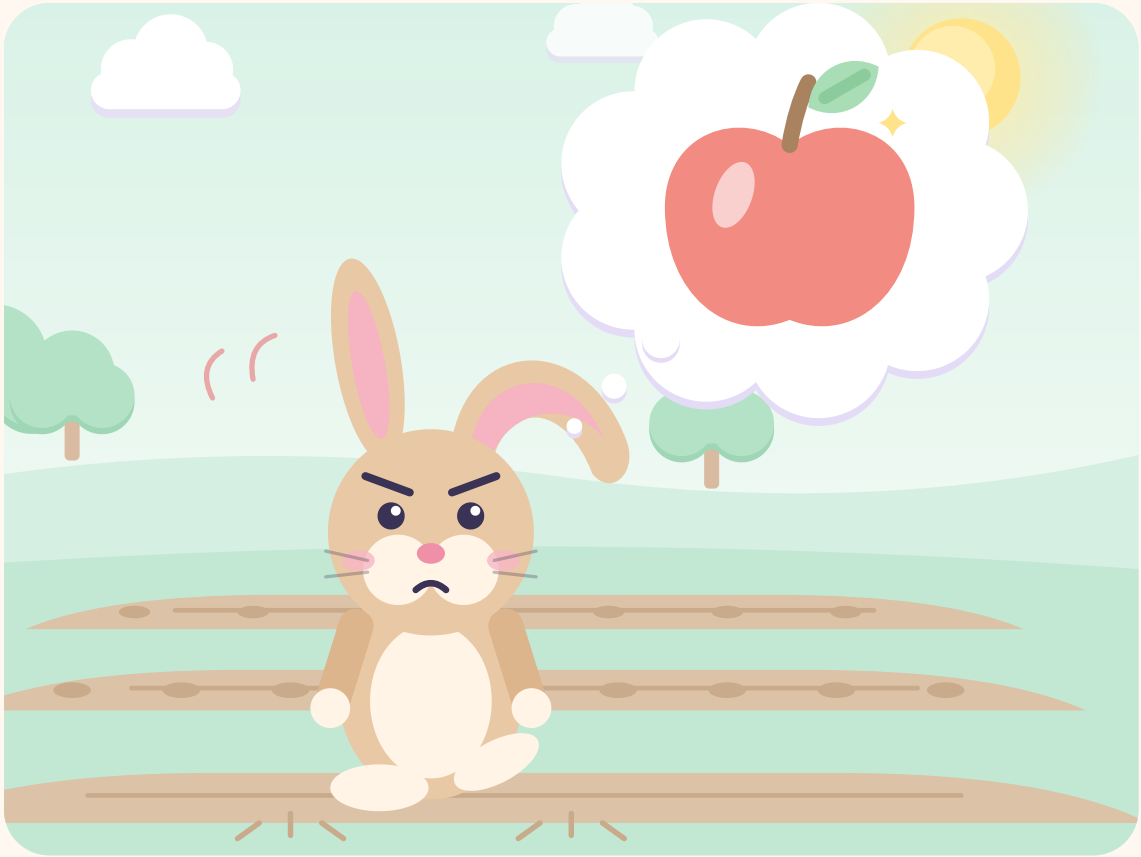

Chapter 2

Waiting Is Hard

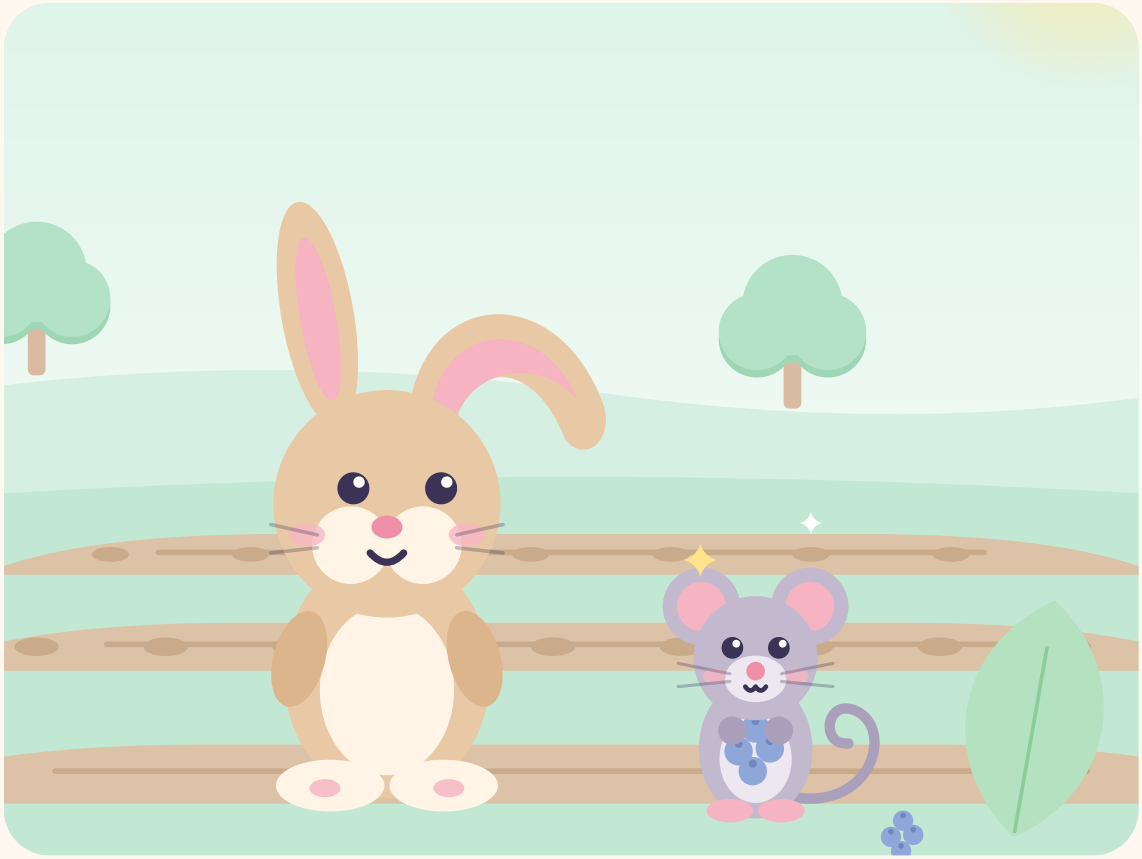

The next morning, Benny ran outside. No apples. No strawberries. Just brown dirt.

Milo the mouse peeked out from under a leaf. He was eating a handful of blueberries. “Benny, why do you look so grumpy?”

“My fruit won't grow,” said Benny. “I want a big red apple now!”

“Here, have a blueberry,” said Milo. “When I'm waiting for something, I keep busy. Why don't you take care of your garden while it grows?”

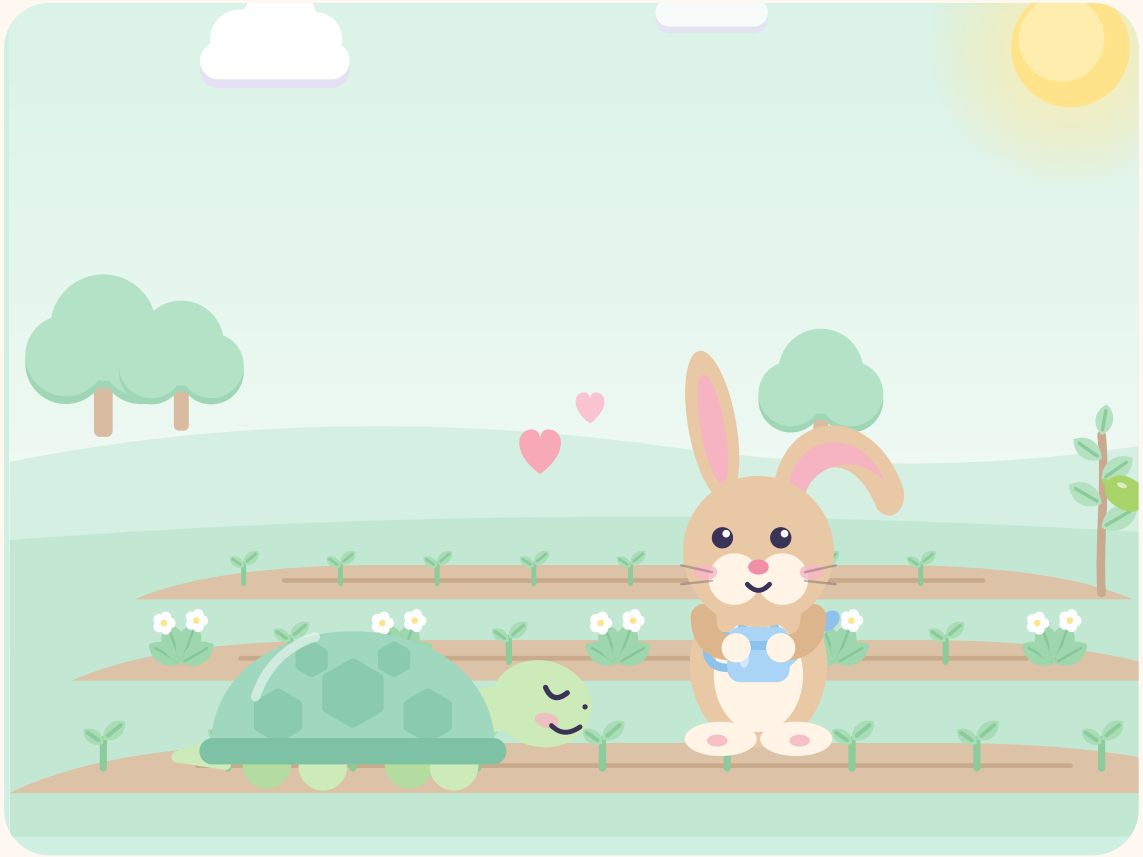

So Benny tried. Every day, he watered the soil. He pulled out the weeds. He shooed away the hungry crows. And while he worked, he forgot to be grumpy.

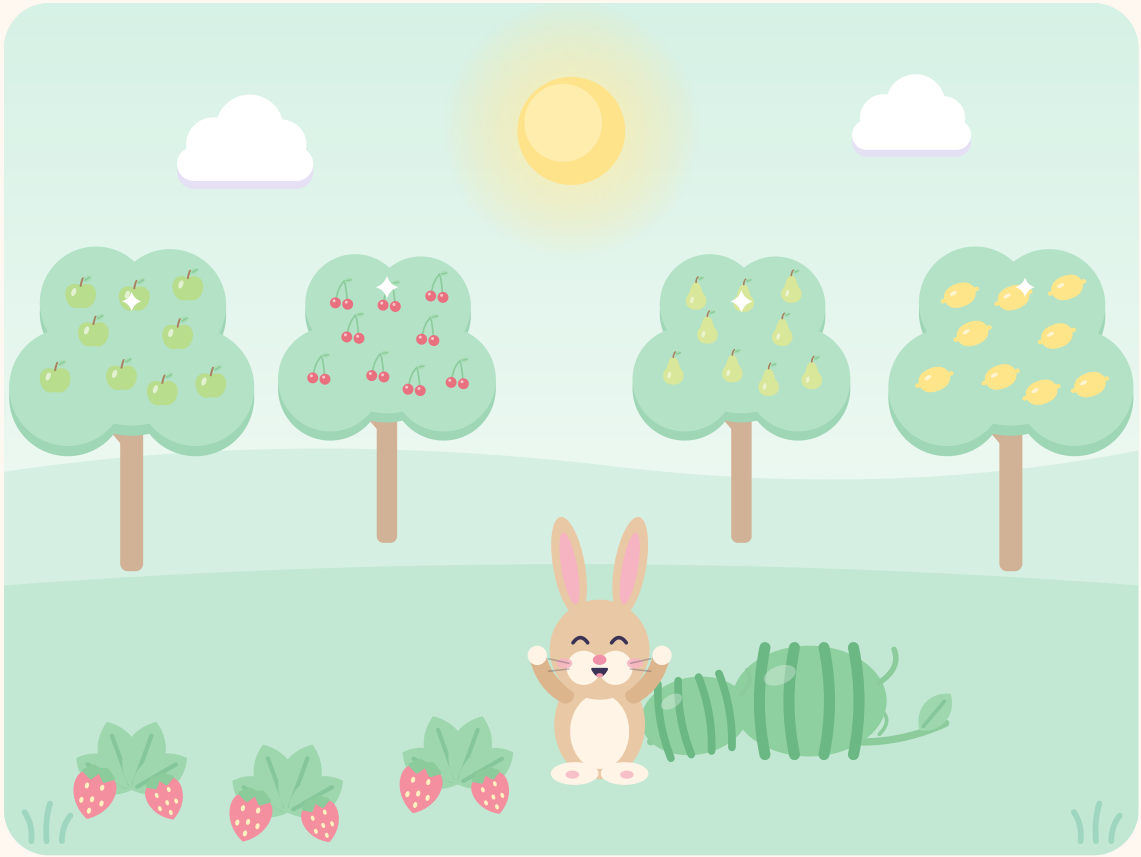

One morning, Benny saw tiny green sprouts. Then he saw little white flowers on the strawberry plants. Then a tiny green bump appeared on the lemon tree!

“Is that a lemon?” asked Benny, hopping in circles. “My fruit garden is growing!”

Tilly the turtle nodded. “You see? Waiting is hard. But when your paws are busy, it gets a little easier.”

Chapter 3

A Fruit Picnic

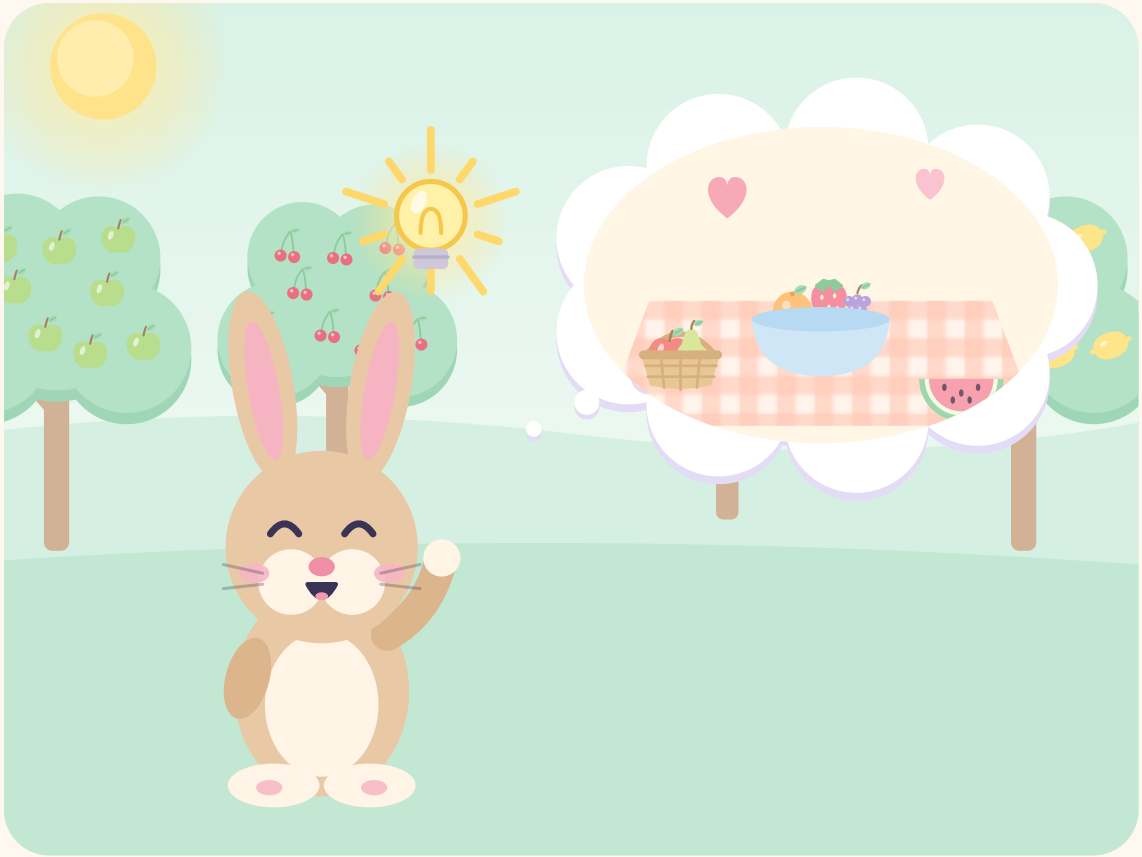

Months went by, and Benny's garden grew and grew. There were sweet red strawberries and shiny red cherries. There were crunchy green apples and juicy pears. A big striped watermelon sat in the sun, and the lemon tree was full of yellow lemons.

Benny was so proud. But when he looked at all that fruit, he had a funny feeling. “This is too much fruit for just one bunny,” he said.

Then he remembered. Grandma had given him the seeds. Tilly had given him good advice. Milo had shared his blueberries.

“I know!” said Benny. “I will have a fruit picnic for everyone!”

On Saturday, all his friends came. Tilly brought a basket of oranges. Milo brought grapes and bananas. Grandma Bunny brought a pitcher of pink lemonade.

Together, they made the biggest fruit salad in the valley. Apples, pears, cherries, strawberries, oranges, grapes, and bananas, all in one bowl!

They ate cold slices of watermelon and laughed until the stars came out.

“Benny,” said Milo, with a very full tummy, “this is the best garden ever.”

Benny smiled. It was not the best garden because it was big. It was the best garden because it was a garden for everyone.

The End.

Vocabulary · Vocabulario

Fruits · Frutas

fruit fruta

apple manzana

cherry cereza

watermelon sandía

strawberry fresa

lemon limón

blueberry arándano

pear pera

orange naranja

grape uva banana plátano